IN THE SOCIAL WORLD.

A WEEK MADE LIVELY BY WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS.

WELL-KNOWN PEOPLE LEAVING TOWN FOR THE SEASON NOTES, PERSONAL AND SOCIAL. There were weddings and announcements of weddings last week, and the end is not yet. And the noise made by the workmen putting up the tell-tale door and stoop awning at one house is mingled with that made by the man putting up shutters and storm doors at the house next door, while the carriage of the bride rubs wheel-hubs with that carrying her friends to the railroad stawith that carrying her friends to the railroad sta-tion or the steamboat pier. In spite of the large number of departures last week there are lots of people still left in town, as the attendance at the numerous weeddings of the week showed, and ai-though the outward movement induced by hot weather has begun, it will be two or three weeks before it reaches its full strength. To those who are "in the swim" is seemed as though the town was principally made up of brides and roses, and the first week of June, 1895, will have a distinctive mark in many a calendar.

Of course the best families of the Heights were of course the best families of the Area Pierre-represented at the wedding of Miss Ellen Low Pierre-port, daughter of Henry E. Pierreport, and R. Burnham Moffat, at Grace Church, on Wednesday afternoon. The ceremony was performed at halfpast 4 o'clock by the Rev. Chauncey B. Brewster, ector of Grace Church, assisted by the Rev. Hatch, William A. Read, Albert Gould Jennings, Norman S. Dike, Alexander M. White, ir., and Robert Low Pierrepont. Alexander E. Richards was best man. About 256 guests attended the reception at the home of Henry E. Pierrepont, between 5 and 7 o'clock.

Between the Moffat-Pierrepont nuptials late in the afternoon and the wedding of Miss Sophie Van Veghten Talmage, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel mage, to George Andrews Minasian, at 8 o'clock in the evening, a large proportion of the fashion-able contingent of the Heights had only sufficient time for dinner and the inevitable change from afternoon to evening attire. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Douglas Adam, pastor of the Dutch Reformed Church, on Pierrepont-st., at the home of the bride in Schermerhorn-st. The bride was attended by Miss Minasian and Miss Allie Voorees as bridesmaids. John Frelinghuysen Talmage the bride's cousin, and the youngest son of Dr John F. Talmage, was the best man, and Chris John F. Haimage, was the well-known Brooklyn and New-York people were invited to the reception, among them being the Revland Mrs. J. Miss Corinne Bulkley was maid of honor and the two bridesmaids were Miss May Edwa and Miss Phila Bulkley. The best man was Mr. Williams, a cousin of the bridegroom.

An interesting engagement announced this week is Elizabeth Boyd, of Greene-ave., to William A. Webster. The engagement has been whispered about for several weeks, and denied as often as it has been asserted. Miss Boyd, though well known has been asserted. Miss Boyd, though well known in the Hill set, has been more in evidence in New-York society than in Brooklyn. She was among the first subscribers to the Cycle Club, of which Mr. Webster was one of the originators, and the frequency with which they have been seen riding together accounts for the fact that it has been termed a bleycle engagement. Mr. Webster is the second of the four sons of E. G. Webster, of Clinton-ave.

The engagement has also been announced of Miss Elizabeth Litchfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willlows, of the same place. Miss Litchfield's father is a cousin of Edward H. Litchfield, and formerly lived in Henry-st., but for the last year or two has made Blythebourne his home. The marriage will probably take place in the autumn. TROLLEY RULES WORK BADLY

BUT THE BROOKLYN ELEVATED ROADS DO NOT COMPLAIN.

THE ATTEMPT OF THE CITY FATHERS TO REGU-

LATE CAR TRAFFIC NOT A BRILLIANT SUC-

The public dissatisfaction with the way in which the Brooklyn trolley cars are run is steadily in-creasing, and the opinion is growing that the Board of Aldermen made a mess of it in the attempt to legislate on the subject. Of course, large number of people are dependent on the trolley cars alone of people are dependent on Those who are not go out of their way to take the elevated roads on all possible occasions, unless indeed they have at their disposal occasions, unless indeed they have at their disposal occasions. all the time there is. The elevated roads rejoice in consequence, and are making preparations for running longer trains, carrying more people and increasing their earnings. They would find it to their advantage if they should run more trains during the middle of the day, so that people who wish to travel with a reasonable degree of speed could do so without running the risk of losing several minutes by waiting on a station platform, fretting and fuming at the delay. There is talk from time to time that the elevated roads will adopt some electric system, and their officers say they stand ready to do this as soon as can be satisfactorily demonstrated that electricit is cheaper than steam. If they should employ th trolley it is obvious that during the hours when travel is not heaviest they could run single cars at short intervals, and so accommodate the travelling public. It is also suggested that when electricity is put in use on their lines they will please the public greatly by placing electric elevators at their stations, and have them so arranged that the elevator shall ascend just in advance of the arrival of each train, when, of course, it would be ready to descend for the benefit of passengers who leave the

On the part of the trolley companies there is a that the restrictions to which they are subjected denote an effort by the city officials to "get square" with them on account of the strike last winter. They lost heavily during the strike and after it, when large numbers of people refused t use the surface cars except when circumstance made it necessary, and under the regulations sine lic at large, and the regulation requiring cars to stop only at the near crossing is another cause of complaint. move is a serious grievance in the eyes of the pub general safety, but ever since horsecars were intro-duced in Brooklyn, more than forty years ago. people have been accustomed to get on and off a the further crossing. The habit has become seconnature, and the innate conservatism of the human animal objects to a radical change in established tracks it will be a gross outrage to compel people to tramp through them in order to reach the rear platform, and the companies are questioning whether the city authorities will compel them to shovel away the snow and even lay flagging for the accommodation of their passengers.

The rule prohibiting all passengers from riding on the front platform drives smokers to the rear platform, except in the case of open cars, and is a source of not a little complaint. Persons entering the car by the rear door are forced into close prox-imity with those who "burn tobacco" in some form or other, and it is impossible to keep the smoke from entering the car and annoying those smoke from sensitive to the sensitive to it.

The frequent use of the front platform by passengers adds one more to the complicated duties of the overworked motorman, since it devolves upon him to open and close the door many times each trip. This is not a small matter when it is remembered that he has his motor, brake and good to attend to, and iterally had both hands full before the function of door-opener was thrust upon byte.

bered that he had been been been the function of door-opener was thrust upon him.

In pursuance of the rule laid down by the State Railroad Commissioners that the car platforms must be closed on the side next the other track, an order has been promulgated the present year that all open cars must be provided with a guard which shall prevent passengers setting off on the side next the other track. This had previously been the rule on other track. This had previously been the rule on some of the Brooklyn lines but not on those of the Brooklyn City for Brooklyn Heights) Company. Chain guards have now been placed on most of the some of this company, and will be attached as rapidly as possible to all of them. Whether they will tend to the safety of the travelling public is an open question in some minds.

If this rule is to prevail, it should, in the opinion of some trolley-car patrons, be supplemented by another. At present the first passenger who enters a seet on an open car naturally places himself where he can get off most easily, unless the sunny. The next comer has to squeeze past himself where he can get off most easily, unless the sunny. The next comer has to squeeze past himself where he seat at the inner end is a disagreeable one, especially for women. So it is aillimed that the City Fathers should adopt another rule and require the first passenger to go as far as possible along the sent, so as to leave an open and unrestricted passage for those who come later. This would be no more unreasonable than some of the rules already in force.

This year the Brooklyn Heights Company has begun to run "traller" cars on some of its lines, following the example of the Brooklyn City and Nowtown Company. The Heights company has recently substituted the trolley for steam on the former dummy line running from Ridgewood to Richmond Hill. As there is no restriction to six or eight or ten miles an hour on the speed of trolley-cars in on the oid turnpike leading from the end of Myrtleave. In the direction of Jamaica.

AFTER LIQUOR DEALERS AND BARBERS.

THE LAW ENPORCEMENT SOCIETY TAKES A HAND IN THE SUNDAY OBSERVANCE MATTER. The Law Enforcement Society, through its presiient, George F. Eillott, yesterday sent letters to e held accomptable for any violation of the
